

The Greenbrier Gun Club

Surefire Adventures

The sound of your shot echoes off the Alleghenies.

“Miss it about ten feet in front,” your instructor advises.

“Miss it?” You ask yourself before the first clay soars across the sky like a pheasant scared from the brush. Just as instinctively, you follow his advice, settling into the pace, finding your rhythm along with one target after another.

Guests of The Greenbrier have enjoyed trap and skeet shooting at our Gun Club for almost a century now, and we have always done our best to provide challenging courses that all level of enthusiasts can enjoy.

On the way up Kate’s Mountain, you catch a glimpse of the Alleghenies many guests never see, before choosing from four fields for trap and skeet shooting.

Maybe you decide to try our new sporting clays course designed by Justin Jones and John Higgins of the British School of Shooting. This 10-station course, with two to four traps per station is as close to flushing grouse, springing teal and bolting rabbits as you are likely to find outside of the wild.

“The stations are challenging, the appointments superb, but of course, you are at The Greenbrier,” says Gun Club Manager Danny Bullard. “And if you want, we can take you game bird hunting on the preserve now through October.”

The British School of Shooting has certified all of our Gun Club professionals as Level 1 instructors and lessons are available by appointment. So if you are given advice to “miss it,” follow your instincts and take it.
